

We are hiring talent for our Brighton and London Studios.

We are looking for an experienced Revit/BIM L2 compliant technologist/technician. They will need big project experience and have a minimum of 5 years professional experience in designing, detailing and constructing buildings. We can accommodate architects or technologists. If they are the right fit for us, then we are less concerned with background as long as they have the experience and expertise.

As our projects are currently predominately delivered through Revit, we are seeking someone who has a passion for BIM, to work closely with our team to roll out our BIM strategy. The role involves helping the practice to optimise both the software and the wider BIM process, identifying how to streamline BIM delivery and maintain our reputation of developing designs and construction information through the creation of beautiful drawings and models.

We are looking for interesting, dynamic, hard-working career-minded long-term candidates, who wish to grow with a young practice that is going from strength to strength. We would welcome innovative candidates who might feel they have good bigger practice experience but want to now be given room to flourish and that are sustainably minded and appreciate that success by marginal gains can often be the best approach. We require technical experience and expertise. The right candidate needs to be a team player who can become part of our long-term goals – to create the most outstanding solutions to the diverse range of work we carry out.

- has 5 years of professional work experience, primarily utilising Revit and AutoCAD, which can be demonstrated in your portfolio
- has excellent time-management and organisational skills
- has the ability to work under pressure and be flexible as part of many teams
- is confident and able to work on own initiative and with limited supervision
- has a strong awareness of building and material technologies
- can liaise directly with the company directors, consultants and contractors through all stages of a project
- is responsible for project administration, reporting and co-ordination
- is engaging, proactive and conscientious
- has a readiness to innovate and take ownership
- is organised, structured and detail-oriented
- has a high level of communication skills - oral, written and presentation – this is extremely important to us
- has good model-making skills
- is ambitious to be part of a growing business and thrive within it
- is dedicated to finding the joy in architecture and immersing yourself in our creative and collaborative environment
- will embrace the diverse, supportive and hard-working LRA culture {shoes-off, music on, coffee on, no headphones}

Salary is dependent on experience.
